Changing Lives

2002-2003 Annual Report

Welcome Home

Over the years, I have lived within sight of famous domes atop impressive buildings or I have traveled to see them. My childhood in Washington, D.C., often stood me in constant gaze of the U.S. Capitol, radiant and beautiful at night in its commanding presence. While I was a divinity student, I walked past the majestic gilded dome of the Massachusetts State House twice a week for three years on my way to an internship assignment, and I often stopped to read the words on Beacon Street from the Bay Colony's first governor about building a City upon a Hill.

William L. Fox
President

I have seen Christopher Wren's masterpiece in London, St. Paul's Cathedral, which survived the bombs of World War II and in its resiliency inspired the generations who remember this special history. And in the Mayan city of Chich'en Itza, I commend one of the greatest buildings there among dozens of wonders, the Caracol, a domed observatory more than 1,000 years old.

Many years ago, I traveled to Israel, saving Jerusalem for the final days of my visit. From the hills around the ancient city or upon the walls dating from the Crusades, the great domes over the holy sites stand out as honey-colored limestone that the medieval hymn named "Jerusalem the golden." On first look, all my travel companions were awed and silent. Then, the guide simply said, "Welcome home."

There is now another dome in my life, no less valued in its meaning or vividness than all the others I call to mind. High upon a bluff overlooking the Mississippi River Valley, the dome of Henderson Hall has stood alone against the sky through a century of seasons. For six months in the aftermath of the May 10 tornado, its absence has been the object of deepest concern from townspeople to travelers.

I have heard from hundreds of alumni/ae and Culver-Stockton friends from across the nation, wondering about the campus, and the dome, in particular. In every instance, I am able to report faithfully on the many "unscheduled" capital improvement projects we have been accomplishing at breathtaking speed—new roofing on almost every building on campus, a new athletic annex that is flexible enough for us to plan a future wellness and fitness center for the entire college, a totally rebuilt Charles Field House ready for play in the new year, and the complete replacement of Zenge Hall scheduled for opening in the spring. And then, there is the vital question about the dome, our beloved symbol of memory and hope.

Robert Frost used to say, "Poetry begins with a lump in the throat." The question about the Henderson Hall dome begins exactly in this manner. Each day the emotions gain breadth and expression as the dome goes back into place. The engineering, design and craftsmanship have been fascinating to watch, advancing and rising day by day. The pride among the crew working from cranes, platforms and scaffolding has truly swelled as the realization sank in that this was no ordinary project. One man in a safety harness about 50 feet over my head, on a gorgeous Missouri harvest afternoon, called down to me that "this was the most important job" he'd ever done.

And now, it is done. The dome is back, its splendor reassuring, its form stately. The completion of the new Henderson Hall dome, however, should not suggest that we mark an interlude, but, rather, a continuation.

Much serious, hard work remains for the college to do and the Annual Report issue of the Chronicle cannot avoid making that point stick. We face pinched operating budgets at Culver-Stockton that have reddened over the past few years. Our recruitment and enrollment efforts have entered a different and much more competitive marketplace. The college, as did many liberal arts institutions, assumed significant capital debt for new facilities and fields that, as it turns out, far exceeded the performance of fundraising activity in the financially robust 1990s.

The dome of Henderson will continue to inspire dreams, but especially now, in its replacement, the dome must beckon us to meet the demanding realities that have also touched this cherished, nearly permanent symbol. The college dome resumes its role as a source of invisible strength, deepening our fundamental sense of purpose—creating visions of success for each student coming to the Hill. Our own historic dome literally circumscribes the Culver-Stockton legacy of success, and like the college itself, we must never take it for granted.

One of the best-known letter writers of the ancient world, who was well traveled and had seen many of the magnificent Greco-Roman buildings throughout the Mediterranean, concluded one of his messages with the phrase, "a great door for effective work has opened to me." In the new year, remembering Henderson Hall, its life and elegance, and how it holds beneath it a history of our personal hopes, let us enter the door below for the great work of supporting the dome above.

36 Sports

Football, volleyball and soccer ended the 2003 season with all-conference picks and new school records. Also, check out Homecoming highlights on page 37.

On the cover: Celebrating our Heritage, mixed media by artist Sheri Lewis-Grote -95, Eolia, Mo. "The dome will always give an inner sense of strength," she noted, "because of its grandeur and soothing melody that flows throughout the campus." Henderson Hall's signature structure was reconstructed after the May 10 tornado and celebrated during a ceremony on Nov. 6.

Alumni and friends,

In October, board of trustees members journeyed from across the country to our annual pre-homecoming trustees meeting. It was a time of excitement. Many of us were coming home to our alma mater, and others were visiting a place we have long admired for creating visions of success for generations of students. The energy on campus was inspiring. Buildings damaged by the tornado are being reconstructed and revitalized, students are beginning new chapters of their lives and alumni are remembering the role Culver-Stockton College has played in their lives.

In this issue, as you read about alumni and friends who have been loyal supporters of the college, I would like for you to think about what Culver-Stockton College means to you. To me, it's a place of opportunity—the place where I learned business and finance from Joe Hootman and Jay Allen, the place where I

This is the time... to fondly think about the past and be a part of the future of your alma mater, Culver-Stockton College.

Do you ever think about that valued professor who pulled you aside and helped you get back on course? Do you often remember driving toward campus using the lit dome as your guide? Do you ever recall walking across campus, realizing the beauty that was surrounding you? Do you ponder the times you spent with the friend who has remained your lifelong confidant? That was your time of joy, learning, forging friendships, realizing dreams and growing from student to young adult. That was your time to appreciate and cherish.

It is now again your time. This time you are invited and encouraged to be a part of your alma mater. It is a simple fact that turning on the lights and warming the classrooms takes money. Is that a need that beckons your gift? Would you rather be a part of helping provide students with quality campus life events? Perhaps you would prefer helping to provide solid support for the professors who are sharing their knowledge to prepare students for chosen vocations. Or would your choice be discovered my career goals and made lifelong friends. It's a place that made it possible for me to be successful in my business life.

As you reflect on your connection to the Hill, I hope you, too, will consider supporting the college's needs so current students may continue to find their own path to success. Giving to the annual fund is a way for us to give today's students the same opportunities we were fortunate enough to have.

During that meeting in October, all trustees thought about what Culver-Stockton College means to us. The entire board is committed to the success of the college, and to demonstrate that commitment, we have made it a priority to balance the college's budget. This will be achieved by increasing enrollment and increasing the number of unrestricted private gifts to the college.

We are a strong and caring Culver-Stockton family. Together, we can and will do many great things.

With hope,

Donald K. Gnuse '56
C-SC Board of Trustees Chairman

to help a student who needs funding to experience an education at Culver-Stockton College? It is your time. The time is now.

Culver-Stockton is busy about the business of recovering from the tornado while also creating visions of success for each student. It is an exciting time on your campus. Your alumni board invites you to be a part of this day, this time, by contributing to your alma mater through the annual fund. It is time. It is our time.

Sincerely,

Shirley S. Collier '67
Director of Alumni Relations

Recognizing donor support

The Advancement Services Staff would like to take this opportunity to thank the many alumni, friends and other benefactors who supported Culver-Stockton College programs and organizations during the past fiscal year. In appreciation of the gifts received, we proudly recognize our donors on the pages that follow. Those making gifts to the college between July 1, 2002, and June 30, 2003, are included in our donor recognition lists. The lists featured are a reflection of our records. If, for some reason, your name has been misspelled or omitted, please accept our apology and feel free to contact our office.

First, we begin by sharing with you a summary of funds raised during the 2002-2003 fiscal year, followed by a report on alumni class giving. If you should have any questions regarding the information that follows, please feel free to contact us at (800) 755-2287. Again, we thank you for your commitment to Culver-Stockton College.

Changing Lives

by Velvet Hasner

How did Culver-Stockton College shape your life? Throughout its 150-year history, Culver-Stockton has been a place where students prepare for their future, make lifelong friends and grow—socially, emotionally, spiritually and intellectually. In this article, you will meet alumni from three different decades, each with a unique story. Because the college made a difference in their lives, they now contribute to Culver-Stockton College's annual fund to ensure the success of current students.

Falling In Love: The Story of Dan '48 and Ginny '46 Wheatcroft

In the 1940s, America was involved in World War II. Although the reality of war created many uncertainties, college students were interested in many of the same activities they are today—sports, Greek organizations and, of course, dating.

"My favorite memory of Culver-Stockton College is meeting my beautiful wife," Dan Wheatcroft said.

Dan enrolled at Culver-Stockton in September 1941, only months before the bombing of Pearl Harbor and America's involvement in World War II escalated. Virginia ("Ginny") Merrick enrolled in 1943 during Dan's last semester at Culver-Stockton. The male population on campus quickly dwindled at this time as the need for heightened military forces produced an exodus of young Americans into training and overseas battle.

"In early '43, the boys left," recalled Ginny. "During the first semester of '44, there were hardly any boys on campus—the number 22 sticks out in my mind. They all lived in Wood Hall."

Dan was one of the young men called to enlist in the military. He joined the United States Air Corp in 1943, having completed half of his college education. He was trained as a member of a B-17 bomber crew.

While at an air base in Ardmore, Okla., Dan wrote Ginny a letter, asking her to come visit him before he was to be sent overseas. (As it turned out, Dan was not sent abroad to fight.) Ginny was able to make the trip. One moonlit evening during her visit, they took a walk, stopping to rest on the porch of a small church and Dan proposed. Ginny accepted and they were married June 11, 1946, following Ginny's graduation from Culver-Stockton College. The Wheatcrofts have been married 57 years and have three children, five grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

As undergraduates, the Wheatcrofts were involved in campus life. Dan belonged to the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity (as did Ginny's older brothers, John and Erv Merrick). Dan also ran the half-mile and quarter-mile for the college's track team.

"One of the best things I can recall about Culver-Stockton is that everyone said 'hi' as you walked past on campus," said Dan. "I loved the friendliness of the student body and the faculty and staff and the warmth and friendship they displayed."

Ginny performed in college theater productions, worked backstage at musicals and belonged to the Chi Omega sorority.

"I enjoyed the camaraderie of being with a bunch of girls and the encouragement you got from your sisters," said Ginny.

Ginny taught sixth grade at Canton Elementary School while Dan, having returned to C-SC in the fall of 1946, completed his degree. After he graduated, the Wheatcrofts moved to St. Louis. They welcomed the addition of three children into their lives, and Ginny became a stay-at-home mother. She later returned to teaching as a substitute teacher for 12 years.

Dan's professional career also began as a teacher. He taught physical education and coached varsity swimming, track and freshman football at Normandy Senior High School in St. Louis County. In 1951, Dan became an executive with the Boy Scouts of America. During his 36-year career with the Boy Scouts of America, Dan was instrumental in merging the Kansas City Area Council and the Kaw Council, Kansas City, Kan., forming the Heart of America Council. Dan served as Scout Executive (CEO) until retiring in 1987.

"We both enjoyed our time at Culver-Stockton. We feel indebted to the college for our education," said Ginny. "We want to give back, and that's why we contribute to the annual fund."

Learning Life Lessons: The Story of Phil Morris '58

In the 1950s, football was a staple of American college life—and an activity that often drew young men to college. Once at college, athletes learned much more than tackles and plays, or even match and English.

Phil Morris '58 retired from State Farm Insurance in December 2000 after a successful 35-year career as an insurance salesman. Among his accomplishments are being named to the State Farm's Legion of Honor (one of the firm's most distinguished accomplishments) and being awarded for superb sales with 10

Millionaire Club trips to places such as Hawaii, Rome and Paris. But Morris was not born a successful businessman. In fact, he hailed from rather humble beginnings in Winston-Salem, N.C.

"My folks were poor," Morris stated bluntly. "I'm just happy I was able to attend Culver-Stockton."

Morris worked his way through college doing various odd jobs, including working as a waiter on campus, mowing lawns and driving an oil truck. He could not afford to return home on weekends, so he immersed himself in campus life. He recalls attending dances hosted by various organizations, hanging out in the Cat's 'Pause' and watching movies at a downtown movie theater.

"Culver-Stockton is a place to grow, as much as it is a place to get an education. It helped me grow as a person," said Morris. "Part of a college education is the social life. I was so far behind socially when I arrived at Culver-Stockton. I was invited to a dance by a sorority girl, and I didn't even know how to dance."

Morris had been recruited to C-SC to play football and baseball by the college's legendary coach, Bill Herington.

Herington became a father figure to Morris, who majored in physical education and aspired to be a coach. Morris accredits Herington, Coach Kenneth Robb, Olga Bays and other professors at C-SC as taking him "under their wing" and providing a nurturing environment in which to receive a college education and learn life lessons.

After graduation from Culver-

Why do you donate to Culver-Stockton College's annual fund every year?

"We're very interested in seeing Culver-Stockton continue as a good Christian college."

—Joe '41 and Lillian (Leslie) Lewis '41
Decatur, IL

"I'm appreciative of the fact that I was able to go to school there. I'm sure there were others that helped me. Now that I'm in a position where I can help students, I want to."

—Milton '49 and Delores (Doerfler) Moore '51
Ann Arbor, MI

"I consider my education at Culver-Stockton to be the 'best time well spent' of my life."

—Donna Herington '52
Columbia, MO

—Don Bingaman ’60
Grosse Pointe Shores, MI

“For me, C-SC was about more than just getting a degree, but an investment of my energies and talents in ways that would affect my life in the years following graduation. Even now, more than 10 years since I left C-SC, I am still relying on the academic, professional and life skills that I picked up during my time on campus. I know that my financial support can help ensure those same opportunities for other students who make their way to the Hill, and that is why I give each year.”

—Jonathan Swain ’92
Indianapolis, IN

“Donating to the annual fund at Culver-Stockton is just a small way for me to give back to the school that has already given me so much—a great education, a lifetime of friendships and a future husband.”

—Julie C. Threlkeld ’01
St. Louis, MO

We would like to thank all the alumni who shared their stories about C-SC and why they support the college’s annual fund. If you have a story to share, we would enjoy hearing from you.

Stockton in 1958, Morris taught and coached for seven years, before accepting an offer to work for State Farm Insurance. Morris now has a life insurance policy with the college named as the beneficiary. (Morris states that naming the college as the beneficiary is an easy process for any insurance policy holder, and the naming or renaming of a beneficiary does not effect the amount of the policy holder’s premiums.)

Morris also donates to the college’s annual fund every year. When doing so, he submits a form to State Farm Insurance and the business matches his donation to the college. (Many companies have policies in which they will match charitable donations of employees. Finding out if your employer has such a policy is as easy as inquiring.)

Preparing for a Career: The Story of H.B. Turner ’79

In 1975, John Wood Community College (JWCC) was created in Quincy, Ill. But with no campus or faculty of its own, JWCC contracted with local colleges, including C-SC, to provide classes for its students. Several transfer students, including H.B. Turner, found the right fit at Culver-Stockton College.

When Turner and his business partner, Michael W. Keenan, bought into Heatron Inc. in 1987, the company was recovering from bankruptcy and had a workforce of 25 employees. Six years later, Turner and Keenan were recognized as finalists for the “Kansas/Western Missouri Entrepreneur of the Year Award” in the manufacturing category. (Heatron’s annual sales had skyrocketed from $1.6 million to $7 million.) Since then Heatron has acquired another manufacturing company, ECA Electronics in Erie, Pa. Today, Heatron Inc. is a the people that helped you get there,” he said. “Give back what they gave to you.”

“Some of my fondest memories are from the people and the experiences I encountered during my four years spent at Culver-Stockton.”

“There are three main reasons I contribute to the annual fund every year,” Morris continued. “I contribute because I can, my company matches my donation and I think the world of Culver-Stockton.”

booming business with 230 employees, four factories and more than $20 million in annual revenues.

“I got a lot out of my years at Culver-Stockton. I feel like I learned a lot in terms of business and relationships with people,” said Turner.

While a C-SC student, Turner was involved in Lambda Chi Alpha, and served as the fraternity’s treasurer.

“I think I learned a lot about leadership and accounting, how to motivate people, get along with people and deal with difficult situations,” he said.

After graduating from Culver-Stockton, Turner began his career in sales and marketing for Charles Industries, founded by alumnus and trustee, Joe Charles ’60. Turner was able to work directly with Charles and feels the experience was invaluable.

“I cherish my experience working for Joe—he exemplified the entrepreneurial business person. I learned a great deal about being an entrepreneur from him,” said Turner.

The lessons Turner learned at Culver-Stockton and from Charles after college graduation have translated into his business success. He contributes to the college's annual fund drive every year as a way to show appreciation and support for the college.

"I think most of the people I went to school with have benefited from Culver-Stockton and done well in life," said Turner. "Some of my fondest memories are from the people and the experiences I encountered during my four years spent at Culver-Stockton."

Continuing the Tradition

As evidenced by the Wheatcrofts, Morris and Turner, exemplary qualities distinguish Culver-Stockton College—the personalized attention students receive from professors, the unity among students and the love C-SC alumni have for their alma mater. Continuing these qualities requires help from alumni. The college needs strong alumni support to meet its operating needs each year. Now is your chance and opportunity to provide for current and future Culver-Stockton students as you were provided for, by donating to the annual fund. From scholarships, faculty salaries and academic equipment to maintenance repairs and overhead costs (electricity, water, heating, etc.), students benefit from the annual fund.

Gifts to the college's annual fund may be made by contacting C-SC Advancement Services at 1-800-755-2287 or One College Hill, Canton, MO 63435. To visit our Web site, log onto www.culver.edu/advancement and click on the "Annual Fund" link on the right.

Building Friendships

Culver-Stockton College is blessed to have the support of dedicated friends. Friends are people or organizations who have a significant interest in the well-being of the college. Our friends all share the desire to help Culver-Stockton College create visions of success for each student.

Who is a friend? Individual friends include family of alumni, parents of current and former students, current and former C-SC faculty and staff, members of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), along with members of other church denominations and local community residents. Institutions that are our friends include businesses, churches, foundations and community organizations.

As with a friendship between two human beings, Culver-Stockton's relationship with its friends is very important. The college deeply appreciates and values each of its friends. We invite you to look through our list of friends who donated to the annual fund for the 2002-2003 fiscal year in this issue of the Culver-Stockton Chronicle.

When I give to the annual fund, where does my money go?

Because gifts to the annual fund are unrestricted, the money you donate to Culver-Stockton College can be applied to the college's area of greatest need. Your support of the annual fund can:

- offset operating expenses (including overhead costs such as water, electricity and payroll to faculty and staff)
- provide scholarships to students
- bolster quality academic programs
- enhance the college's ability to provide cutting edge technology
- expand student development programs (such as leadership and recreation activities, enrichment courses and other opportunities outside the classroom)
- maintain the college's buildings and grounds

welcome home: hope finds its place

by Rachel Rohn

For 150 years, Culver-Stockton College has remained a pillar of strength and endurance. These traits can be seen in many aspects of the college, but none symbolize it more than the dome atop Henderson Hall.

During a special ceremony on Thursday, Nov. 6, Culver-Stockton College's new dome was completed, 180 days after the May 10 tornado destroyed the structure. Faculty, staff, alumni, students and community members were present to witness the final step in the long process of rebuilding Culver-Stockton's most notable trademark.

"Our dome is a symbol of heritage and hope. It represents tradition and the will to flourish and never give up," said President William Fox as he welcomed ceremony attendees.

Those who attended the ceremony observed the final piece of the dome being lowered into place, and then signed a guest book, which will be preserved inside the dome. Tammy Kanatzar, interim chaplain, led the crowd in prayer. Terry Fretwell, mayor of Canton, presented the college with a proclamation.

"I believe the Lord took the trees from the hillside to make us come together as a community," said Fretwell.

Since 1856, the campus has featured a dome. Old Main, the first building on campus, had a large dome, which could be admired not only by students and Canton residents, but also by travelers moving up and down the Mississippi River. After being destroyed by fire in 1903, Old Main was rebuilt and dedicated as Henderson Hall after college founder D. Pat Henderson. A dome was once again placed on top of the building, but now had a greater meaning. Not only did it represent the ongoing strength of the college, but also served as a reminder to how the college and the Canton community came together to restore the building.

The completion of the dome was made possible by the cooperative efforts of many individuals and businesses. Poepping, Stone, Bach and Associates Inc. (PSBA) in Quincy, Ill., created the initial design of the dome. PSBA professional engineer and structural engineer Charles S. Bach Jr. worked in conjunction with Bleigh Construction Company of Hannibal, Mo., in designing the new dome. DeMuth Steel Products Company in Leola, Pa., manufactured the steel pie-shaped sections of the dome, then Bleigh Construction assembled the dome atop Henderson Hall. Peters Heating and Air Conditioning installed the substructure cladding and Entrup Drywall and Painting in Quincy, Ill., painted the structure.

The dome was designed to be stronger and more durable and maintains the dome's former appearance, adhering to guidelines set by the National Register of Historic Places, to which Henderson Hall was named in 1978.

The new dome continues to symbolize Culver-Stockton College's enduring strength, representing all the blessings the college and Canton Community have received.

"Now in its replacement," said President Fox, "the college dome resumes its role as a source of invisible strength, deepening our fundamental sense of purpose—creating visions of success for each student coming to the Hill."

Thus, the completion of the dome marks not a beginning, but a continuation for the college through this symbol of hope and strength.

Bleigh Construction Company assembled the dome one pie-shaped piece at a time. By Oct. 31, all the pieces had been placed except the middle crown of the structure.

Our biggest fan

by Velvet Hasner

Roy D. Wilcox '37 in 1934

Before she was a Culver-Stockton College student—and even before she was a preschool student—Cindy (Wilcox) Wiltshire '64 attended C-SC football games. Her father, Roy D. Wilcox '37, was a dedicated Wildcat fan, and brought his family from their home in Quincy, Ill., across the river on many Saturdays to cheer for his alma mater.

“My father was one of those people in the bleachers that went with the team down the field as they played,” recalls Wiltshire. “And if you were on the end of the bench, you got bumped onto the concrete!”

Wilcox passed away in 1996, but his name will live on for many generations with the Roy D. Wilcox Memorial Pressbox at Ellison Poulton Stadium. The pressbox was a gift from Dorothy Wilcox, widow of Roy, and the Wilcox family. A special dedication ceremony was held during halftime at the Homecoming football game on Saturday, Oct. 11. Dorothy, the Wilcox children and many of the grandchildren attended the ceremony. Alumni attending include: Janet (Wilcox) Hoffmann -67, wife of Tom Hoffmann -66; Cindy (Wilcox) Wiltshire, wife of C. Thomas Wiltshire '63, C-SC professor of biology (parents of Michelle Bouchard '88, wife of Fred Bouchard '87, former C-SC football coach; and Bob Wiltshire '85).

The stadium's former pressbox was built in 1953, when the football stadium was constructed. One room held media, coaching staffs from both teams (including filmers) and game personnel (such as the scoreboard operator, public address speaker and sports information crew). To create the Roy D. Wilcox Memorial Pressbox, the main level of the former press box (second level) was expanded and a third level was added. The concession stand remains in its former location and the public restrooms have been expanded.

The Roy D. Wilcox Memorial Pressbox contains several rooms on the second level, including separate rooms for the media, home coaches, visiting coaches, recruiters, restrooms and a special VIP room on the upper level. Additional features include carpeting and climate control (heating and air conditioning).

In addition to sporting events, Rod Walton, C-SC athletic director, anticipates using the VIP room often for various college meetings and functions.

“It will be a good recruiting tool, not only for football, but for softball as well,” said Walton.

A window on the northeast side of the press box overlooks the future site of Culver-Stockton's new softball field.

Roy D. Wilcox '37

Wilcox's legacy at Culver-Stockton College began in 1933, when he enrolled as a freshman. His outstanding play as a linebacker and blocking back for the football team, coached by Herb Bunker, brought Wilcox state-wide recognition his junior and senior years. He also lettered in baseball. A natural leader, Wilcox served as president of several campus organizations, including his fraternity, Mu Theta Nu.

After graduating from Culver-Stockton College, Wilcox served as a Navy officer during World War II. His campaign ribbons include the American Theatre, European-African Theatre, Asiatic-Pacific Theatre and the Philippine Liberation. During the Korean Conflict he returned to serve as an executive officer at Okinawa.

Wilcox worked for the State of Illinois Division of Vocational Rehabilitation for more than 30 years, 18 years as a counselor and 14 years as regional supervisor. His work helped people with disabilities enter the workforce.

Wilcox's heart always remained at Culver-Stockton College, whether he was cheering at a football game or visiting one of his daughters on campus. He was involved with Culver-Stockton support projects, honored as a distinguished alumnus in 1963 and named an athletic great in 1987.

After a lifetime of serving his alma mater, the Wilcox family is pleased to have Roy D. Wilcox's name associated with a place he so deeply loved.

Lady Wildcats celebrate best season in history

The first four-year senior class in Culver-Stockton women's soccer history will walk across the stage and receive their degrees in May 2004.

They have already left their mark on the Lady Wildcat soccer program.

Seven members from the inaugural freshmen class in the fall of 2000 walked off the field for the final time after a 3-2 victory over Hannibal-LaGrange College on Oct. 30 in Hannibal, Mo.

The victory gave the Lady Wildcats a school record 13 victories, keeping the streak of improving their win total from the previous year alive.

The women's soccer program has steadily improved since the inception of the program in 2000, and the seven graduating seniors have been a big reason why.

Six of the seven seniors have been starters for each of their four seasons on the Hill. Two players, Sarah Mueller and Jessica Moore, played in all but one match during their tenures, totaling 73 in all.

Mueller also made her mark on the field by setting the school record for assists with 32, despite playing defense all of her career.

Senior Beth Zeidler has set the bar high for future strikers to shoot toward offensively. Zeidler netted 81 career goals and tallied 181 career points (81G, 19A) during her four-year tenure. She also holds the season and game records for goals with 25 and six, respectively.

The seven seniors have contributed 67.5 percent of the goals scored the last four years, and have started 84.2 percent of the games played.

The senior class also helped the soccer program achieve another first in 2003 when they were ranked in the NAIA Region V rankings for the first time.

Despite all of the things done on the field, head coach Matt Longo is proudest of what this group has done off the field.

"Along with the numerous records and accomplishments this group has achieved, the major aspect is that all seven seniors will graduate with degrees in their fields of study," said Longo. "They have worked hard to maintain success at soccer as well as their future professional careers."

The foundation has been built for Lady Wildcat soccer. It will be up to future classes to make sure the job is completed.

Fall sports review

The fall sports year at Culver-Stockton College was a season of peaks and valleys for the Wildcat athletic teams.

The women's soccer and volleyball programs each improved on its win-loss total from a season ago. The football team battled injuries and inconsistent play to finish with four wins while the men's soccer team fought inexperience and youth to win just two games all season.

WOMEN'S SOCCER

The Lady Wildcat soccer program closed its season by again setting a school record for wins with 13. The program, which just finished its fourth season of competition, has improved its victory total each season, finishing 13-5-2 overall in 2003. The Lady Wildcats were 3-4-2 in the Heart of America Athletic Conference (HAAC) to end in a tie for fourth in the league, their highest finish to date.

The season was highlighted by a record-breaking win at Illinois Tech in the season opener when the Lady Wildcats broke the school record for goals in a game (13) in a 15-0 win. In that game, senior Katie O'Brien tied the school record for assists in a game with four helpers.

Another highlight of the women's soccer team came in early September when Zeidler was named the NAIA National Player of the Week for Aug. 30-Sept. 6. It is the first time in school history that a women's soccer player had been so honored.

VOLLEYBALL

The volleyball Wildcats showed steady improvement under second-year head coach Barb Crist. The netters completed the season with a 20-11 overall record and in fourth place in the HAAC with a 7-3 mark.

The 20 wins overall and seven conference wins represent the most wins by the volleyball team in two seasons. In addition, the spikers advanced to the HAAC Tournament semifinals for the first time since the 2000 season.

Five players were named to the all-conference team, including juniors Gail Haas and Kara Buckner, who were named to the first team. Junior Rachel Meyer was named to the second team while junior Katie Scheuermann and freshman Taylor Buckner were honorable mention selections.

FOOTBALL

The Wildcat grid team got off to an excellent beginning, winning three of four games in the month of September.

However, October wasn't as kind as the Wildcats dropped all three games, including a heart-breaking 34-31 overtime loss to Avila during homecoming on Oct. 11. The month also included a high-scoring road loss to fourth-ranked MidAmerica Nazarene, which the Wildcats led 35-28 before succumbing 56-35.

Highlights of the season were running back D.J. Johnson setting career marks for touchdowns and points scored, with 34 and 204, respectively. Johnson also became the first player in school history to rush for 1,000 yards in consecutive seasons, finishing with 1,013 yards on 207 carries.

Meanwhile, wide receiver Sterling Finney set career marks for receptions and reception yardage. Finney, who set a single-season reception mark in 2002, finished his career with 173 receptions for 2,108 receiving yards. Sophomore quarterback Thomas Barnes set a new single season record for passing touchdowns with 17 this season.

MEN'S SOCCER

The men's soccer team labored through a difficult season in 2003. Sporting a roster that featured 14 freshmen or sophomores on a 19-player roster, the Wildcats ended the season with a 2-16-1 overall record and a 1-8-0 conference record. Sophomore Todd Schroeder led the Wildcats with six goals.
